Your own Retreat

Marwood Project's boutique residential Elsternwick project Retreat comprises 14 residences, including 10 two-bedroom units from $689,000 and four one-bedroom units from $499,000 and is designed by Caulfield North architects Fredman Malina.

New restaurant

Works have begun to transform the former Caulfield City Rifle Club into a new restaurant and bar. The $2 million project includes installing external ramps to improve access for people in wheelchairs and parents with prams, and a large external deck for outdoor seating.

ALBERT PARK

Stylist earns national gong

ADRIAN Rotolo, 27, of Ibiza Hair was one of just five Melbourne hairdressers to win a national award.

Mr Rotolo, who has worked at Ibiza for eight years, was named colour technician of the year at the 2016 Schwarzkopf Professional Hair Expo.

He has cut, coloured and styled the hair of several Block contestants. His regular clients include Anthony Callea, Tim Campbell and Belinda Carlisle.

"(Carlisle) comes in whenever she has a show," Mr Rotolo said. "She's been in the last two years because of the Melbourne Cup."

Ibiza Hair is at 151 Victoria Ave, Albert Park.

PORT MELBOURNE

Nutrition provides a healthy business

THE Whole Kids healthy snack food range, founded by a Port Melbourne mum, is about to get bigger.

Over the last 10 years, the Port Melbourne company has built a reputation for organic, additive-free snacks and drinks, but founder Monica Meldrum said parents could expect more sweet and savoury goods in stores later this year.

Ms Meldrum said the new range would be an extension of what the company provided already.

"The most nutritious products on the market for kids," she said. "I think people are really aware and educated about food these days; they're reading labels and checking what's in their food," she said.

Whole Kids has also launched its new-look packaging, featuring 24 children from across Melbourne.

"I think it's a great way to include families in what we do," Ms Meldrum said.

Whole Kids is a renowned healthy food brand but it is also a social enterprise that, each quarter, donates one per cent of its total sales revenue to children's health, education and environmental projects.
